

Jungle Journey

The Memory Keepers

Elephants have a large brain. That is no surprise because they are the biggest land animals alive. They have large brains but better than that— they have great memories. Elephants are very smart and can learn a lot of commands. They have an excellent memory. It has been said that elephants rarely forget what they have learned. Our brains are probably not as large as the elephants, but our memories still allow us to follow directions.

The verse below reminds us to remember our creator when we are young and have clear minds. It is important that we are able to obey and serve God together. Kids can work with adults. When Christians are able to work together, they do they couldn't do on their own. We need to remember the great things that God has done for us!

“Remember your creator in the days of your youth.”

Ecclesiastes 12:1
